Project # 12 by Michael Ruglio-Misurell

Project #12 transforms the gallery into a total environment evocative of a shopping mall food court that has endured an undetermined event, possibly a disaster, abandonment or human havoc. Built from found, painted and handmade objects, Project # 12 fluctuates between disorder and artifice.

August 25 - November 21, 2009

Kay Rosen

Rosen's works concentrate on the slippery play between language's visual and verbal structures and how that oscillation affects meaning. Evolving over three months, the exhibition includes collage, video and wall painting.

Reflection: a video program

Disparate works by five artists (shown one artist per day of the week) are linked by their varying approaches to artistic agency.

Reception: Wednesday, August 26, 5-8 pm
